Dear Mark,

Having gone through the proposed policy, we have a couple of concerns being:

1. It seems that under this policy a mere accusation is enough for someone to have their licence(s) refused/revoked. Surely this cannot be right. We understand that the threshold is lower when compared with criminal law however, whatever happened to "innocent until proven guilty"?

2. We are against the proposal for motoring offences, in particular that the license will be revoked if the license holder has more than six points on their DVLA driving licence.

As you are aware, many of our jobs are App based. We are also required to take card payments on hand held devices. As such, we are not in favour of this element of the policy.

Regards

Asif
